

Science on the Hill: Can we someday predict earthquakes?

March 14, 2016

Science on the Hill: Can we someday predict earthquakes?

by Paul Johnson

Earthquakes pose a vital yet puzzling set of research questions that have confounded scientists for decades, but new ways of looking at seismic information and innovative laboratory experiments are offering tantalizing clues to what triggers earthquakes — and when.

This story first appeared in the Santa Fe New Mexican.

Managed by Triad National Security, LLC for the U.S Department of Energy's NNSA